Last Meeting – November 29

Bob Mason introduced us to John Johnson, Reedley College Aeronautics Instructor. John gave us a comprehensive briefing on the flight sciences instruction program that Reedley College now operates. He said that the program is four semesters without a summer break. It is intense and well worth the investment. After completing the program, one can get a job as a flight instructor where they need to rack up flight hours to reach the 1500 hour mark. One can then apply to become a co-pilot at a regional airline. The next step is usually to move on to pilot position with regional and then on to co-pilot with a major airline. John said there is a great need for more pilots in the United States. Reedley College is the only community college in California that you can use your “Post 9-11 V.A. Benefits” for the instruction.
